Orange

What is orange wine you ask? It is white wine that is made like red wine: the juice is left in contact with the skins for a time rather than be pressed right off. This traditional method from Northeastern Italy, Slovenia, & Georgia has also been adopted by many new world producers, including some from right here in Oregon.

Sherry

Sherry is a fortified wine from Andalucía, Spain that goes through a solera, a system of blending where wines from different years are mixed into each other over time. Sherry can be divided into two main categories: biological and oxidative. In biological styles, a layer of yeast called flor will form over the top of the wine, protecting it from oxygen while imparting a distinct flavor. Oxidative styles do not have protection of the flor and develop rich walnut and toffee notes as they age. The cellar master, called the capataz, guides the wines through aging and determines its fate based on years of practice.

Fino

Fino is the first stop on sherry's development. Fresh and briny, these wines are excellent with marcona almonds and sardines.

Valdespino, Inocente, Jerez de la Frontera, Spain 375ml _____ $12
Equipo Navazos, En Rama, Saca May 2015, Jerez de la Frontera, Spain 375 ml _____ $16

Manzanilla

Manzanilla is fino that is made only in the seaside town of Sanlúcar de Barrameda. Their proximity to the ocean breezes makes the sea spray aroma more pronounced than with fino.

La Cigarerra, Sanlúcar de Barrameda, Spain 375 ml _____ $15

Amontillado

This style is exposed to oxygen later on in its aging, combining the taste of flor with nutty, oxidative characteristics.

Bodegas Grant, "La Garrocha," El Puerto se Santa María 375 ml _____ $15

Palo Cortado

Like Amontillado, Palo Cortado is a combination of being aged oxidatively and under flor. A rare and special category, it is between an amontillado and an oloroso.

Fernando de Castilla, "Antique," Jerez, Spain 375 ml _____ $42
Emilio Lustau, "Peninsula," Jerez, Spain 750ml _____ $26

Oloroso

Oloroso sherry is made without flor to protect the wine from oxygen. This gives the wine rich walnut and toffee notes.

El Maestro Sierra, 15 years old, Jerez, Spain 375ml _____ $23

Gamay

The grape that puts a smile on your face. At home in Beaujolais, but has found delivious expressions around the world. Gamay is light and bright, but also has a serious streak.
